LSSI Named Top 50 Technology and Service Provider

POWAY, Calif., June 27, 2007 – Lender Support Systems, Inc. (LSSI), a global provider of lending and service technology solutions, announced that it has been named a leading mortgage technology provider for 2007 by Mortgage Technology magazine.

LSSI is one of only 50 recipients receiving the honor this year, whereas the magazine has recognized 100 providers and vendors in years prior. LSSI has undergone an extensive review process over the past several months to justify its validation of this select achievement. To be considered for inclusion on the Mortgage Technology list of top fifty mortgage technology providers, vendors must meet four major criteria: customer satisfaction, functionality, market share and viable revenue model.

As a reflection of the growth experienced by LSSI, the company has recently expanded into its new corporate facility, established an off-shore development center and added experienced mortgage industry veterans to its management team. LSSI also released the next generation of its document preparation solution, Docs3D, and an upgrade version of its servicing software, Servicer3D.

The company plans to announce several new product offerings and expand strategic alliances in the coming months that will position the company for continued growth. LSSI had doubled its revenue since 2004, expanding its product offerings to include document preparation services and servicing technology.

“LSSI is honored to be recognized as a top mortgage technology provider the same year we celebrate 25 years of operation,” said Cary Burch, CEO of LSSI. “Amid the challenging real estate market, we continue to serve our customers by developing new products and services to further grow our business and to remain a fierce competitor in our space.”
